To Whom It May Concern:

I wholeheartedly and insistently give my recommendation that anyone in search of a realtor, a seller's realtor or a buyer's realtor, strongly consider Christina D'Alessandro. This recommendation is given without a moment's hesitation as my experience working with her surpassed all of my expectations of what a realtor could offer.

My experience with Christina as a realtor is as follows:

In November of 2007, I first met her in the role of a long-time friend's realtor. In less than two months, she helped him close escrow on a 3600 sq. ft. home at the end of a quiet McKinleyville subdivision. Since I eventually cosigned on the loan for the home, I was able to see Christina in action throughout the home-buying process (which is far more complicated than it seems it should be!). From day one, she was invested, with her time and emotionally, with helping her client reach his goals—while continually helping him to reassess and communicate those goals.

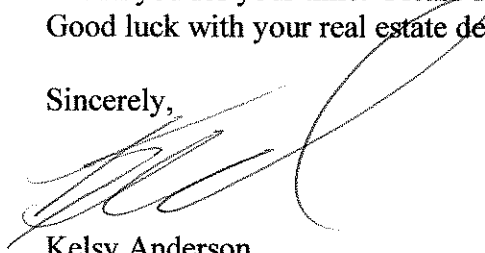

In January of 2008, I asked Christina to act as my realtor and show me the house at 730 Edwards St. in Trinidad. Within two months, I had the keys to the house in my hands. She transformed a stressful, emotional, life-changing event into an adventure with a perfect ending. In absolute honesty, I do not think I would be waking up to an ocean view every day without Christina's negotiation skills and persistence.

As a local business owner with 52 employees, I have been lucky enough to work with a wide diversity of personalities and communication styles among other business owners, employees, independent contractors, and professionals. Some are a pleasure to work with; others are not. Some are passionate about their work and their contribution to their companies and/or clients; others are not. Christina offers the best of both worlds.

I urge you to spend some time talking with her, about your real estate plans, or just about the weather. You will find that she is a delightful presence, full of optimism and life-loving energy. She will view you as a individual in a unique situation, not just another client or sale. Let me say one final time: I recommend Christina D'Alessandro without hesitation.

Thank you for your time. Please feel welcome to call me if you have any questions. Good luck with your real estate decisions.

Sincerely,

Kelsy Anderson
